

Marko Miletich

Bionote

Marko Miletich obtained a Ph.D. in Translation Studies from Binghamton University in 2012. He has a Master's Degree in Liberal Arts with a Concentration in Translation from the Graduate Center of the City University of New York, a Master's degree in Hispanic Civilization from New York University and a Bachelor's Degree in Spanish from Hunter College. He has worked extensively as a professional translator and interpreter and has developed curricula for several courses in translation as well as serving as a coordinator for Translation and Interpretation programs. He has taught translation and interpreting courses at Hunter College, Adelphi University and Montclair State University and several New York City hospitals. He has published articles about gender issues in translation, service-learning, and non-verbal communication in interpreting. His translations have appeared in Reunion: The Dallas Review and KIN Online Literary Translation Journal. He is currently an Assistant Professor of Spanish and Translation in the Humanities Department at the Texas A&M Corpus Christi.

Statement

It is a great honor to run for a Member-at-Large position on the Executive Committee of ATISA. I have been a member for almost five years and I believe ATISA to be one of the best organizations that encourages the exchange of information at an academic level. Promoting the Translation and Interpreting fields in the United States has been my passion and I would welcome the opportunity to contribute to the advancement of our association.